While talking to BISP beneficiaries, Shamim Akhtar and Zahida Kazmi emphasized upon depending on own strengths in order to survive and contribute in the welfare of their families. They argued that nothing was too difficult if women had the will. However, if women made them believe that they could not do certain tasks, nothing would work for them. They appealed BISP beneficiaries to get advantage of the social and financial assistance received from BISP in overcoming the problems of hunger and poverty. They praised the Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif for his pro-poor policies that have been instrumental in supporting needy and courageous women like them.

On the occasion, Chairperson BISP said that the objective of “BISP Empowers Talk” is to put women role models in front of most vulnerable women of Pakistan to encourage them to get out of misery created by poverty and other discriminations. She added that BISP is beacon of light for the struggling beneficiaries with an aim to break the poverty net and become self-sufficient as envisioned by Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif.
